SECRETARY OF STATE HAMMOND MAKES EXPLANATION HUSBAND FINDS HER LYING IN A STUDOR

FOLLOWING the publication yesterday morning in The Herald of the true condition of the affairs of the defunct private bank of B. H. Schettler, conferences were held by several of the depositors, who had put from $1,000 to $2,000 in the bank, with a view of outlining some action to be taken by them. The chief mover in getting the matter before the public was the case of 736 West Sixth North street, who had been notified by the bank last night that a meeting would be called for next Monday or Tuesday night, at which time the affairs of the bank would be presented. The bank's affairs will then be thoroughly discussed and a motion will be made to call a meeting of the organization for the purpose of taking such steps as may be deemed necessary to protect the interests of the depositors and the assets of the institution.

It was generally deemed favorable prosecuting Schettler, alleging that in their opinion he had received deposits after he had not been declared in liquidation. Others were for suing the secretary of state on his bond, claiming that if he had not been declared in liquidation he would have permitted Schettler to run a private bank in violation of the law required by the state banking law in a city of the size and class of Salt Lake.

It was also suggested that the organization record as doing or attempting to do anything until such time as all the depositors had been notified and met together and decide upon some line of Hammond Mail Explanation.

State Bank Examiner W. J. Beatie was out of the city yesterday, but will return this morning. Secretary of State James H. Hammond yesterday afternoon was asked why he permitted Schettler to continue running his private bank in the city. He said he should have had him arrested.

After I went into office I made a verbal request of Schettler to comply with the state banking law, so far as capitalization and reserves were concerned. His reports were concerned. He refused, contending that as his bank was in existence before the law was passed or could be passed, he was not bound by it. He claimed that the law was retroactive.

I spoke to him again about it, but he still refused to comply with the law. I sent a letter to him yesterday, giving him a fair warning of the condition of his bank, and has made those reports regularly ever since.

"None of the statements showed him to be inept, but a few were such that they would lead one to see that his

Schettler Made Promises.

"I called his attention to his financial weakness and he agreed to sell some real estate to me," said Schettler, "and I gave him and with the proceeds to reimburse the bank's capital."

"He told me to say that there is no provision in the laws of Utah for the examination of the books of private banks, which was what I did in the matter of insisting that Schettler put more money into his business," continued the witness. "The attention and for the protection of the depositors. My action was based upon his last statement report."

James Connors, the Blackfoot
Murderer, Hugged at

Boise, Idaho, Dec. 16.—James Connors was executed inside of the prison yard this morning at 8:10 for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Sweet at Blackfoot. Dec. 16, 1904, was the darkest and coldest blooded in the history of the state. In company with two other men from the state, the people of Blackfoot and afterwards visited a Japanese settlement where the men were employed in the construction of a railroad. They met the deputy sheriff and James Connors he shot him twice and the deputy died a few hours later. Connors was tried and sentenced to die to make any statement and when the hour of execution arrived he walked calmly to the gallows and he declined to have spiritual comfort and faced death with a bravado never before witnessed on a scaffold in Idaho. He was executed in about thirty minutes after the trap was sprung.

GOVERNMENT GOING AFTER LAND SHARKS

Federal Grand Jury Expected to Return Indictments Against Prominent Oregon People.

Portland, Dec. 16.—Francis J. Hengel, California attorney, who acted as prosecutor for the government in the recent land fraud trial, has been appointed assistant U. S. attorney for the district of Oregon. The appointment, which was announced in copper shares, came to Boston today and was met at the Hotel Touraine by Mr. Lawson. The nature of the statements issued by both Colonel Greene and Mr. Lawson, but particularly the latter's, have been the subject of much speculation. It was said that Lawson was to blame for the raid upon the stock of the Green Consolidated, but he was not to be connected with the company, together with the market developments of the past few days. The combined forces of the two operators of a clash between the two operators.

ROBBER ROUTED BY TWO GIRLS

YOUNG WOMEN CHASE HIM

MAN THROWS BACK POCKET-BOOK AND ESCAPES.

ARGARETTE ZIMMERMAN, 20 years of age, and Miss Cynthia, 22 years of age, two German girls who came to this country last Sunday, fought courageously with a purse snatcher about 7 o'clock last night and finally succeeded in recovering their purse.

The girls were going to the home, of 1515 East Eighth Street, when they were followed by a man. He snatched Zimmerman's purse, which she was carrying on her arm, wrestled with her for some time, and then tried to go of the purse. He jerked and twisted his arms around her arm and breaking the chain started to make his escape.

Both girls followed close on his heels and called out to him. The lighted door turned and threw the purse back at them. They followed him no farther, but through the back on Fourth East.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—Confirming the report of the formation of an international steel rail pool a telegram from Barrows says:

"The agreement which was signed by all the representatives of the British, French, German and Belgian makers extends for a period of three years and is likely to include American makers, at any rate over certain zones. It was felt that the European agreement would develop into a world-wide competition, so overtures were opened though not so much on the question of the European zones to be allotted to the European and the American, respectively. A scheme has been mapped out and practically agreed upon on the part of the British, French and the American steel corporation. It is anticipated that the new pool will be put into operation January 1, and under its auspices the price of the price of heavy rail sections now 35 shillings per ton, will be lifted to 36 shillings. The combined interests of all the largest steel mills of the four countries will be centered in a London office, which will administer the business and from which orders will be allotted.

"This promises to be the strongest and most effective combine brought into existence since the war with the steel or any other trade in this country and the first time German, French, Belgian, and American makers have been arranged on a common platform."

Simultaneously comes a telegram from London which states that it is understood there are English manufacturers who have not joined the combine, which is confined to the German, French, Belgian and American makers in Belgium and France and the United States steel corporation. The German steel makers.

"The revival of the scheme was mooted two years ago and is believed to emanate from the highly profitable business of the war, which has made many, with the view of exploiting trade markets and abstaining from competition, have been inclined to pool their resources. The German steel vendors hoped to be able to take full advantage of the boom on the continent arising from the Russo-Japanese war, but the Americans can direct their efforts toward South America and the far east. The British, however, are situated in Staffordshire as being unwarrantably between Eighth and Ninth South streets. Neither one of the girls could speak a word of English and when they reached the home of Mrs. Braby they were too excited to tell what had happened in their own language. They were unable to give any description of the man and were content with having secured their purse.

HER VIEW SUSTAINED

Fight of a Denver Girl For Her Share of Her Father's Estate.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—A notable decision was handed down today by the appellate court in the unique litigation between Edward H. Comer of Chicago and Miss Mary McDonnell of Denver, over the possession of the young woman's share of her father's estate.

London, Dec. 16.—The appeal of the United States against the decision of the justice of the crown at Quebec in the case of Greene and Gaylor came up before the privy council today.

Edward Clarke, K. C., who with Donald McMaster, K. C., of Montreal, represents the United States, opened the case, recited the well known facts.

It is now more than five years since Greene and Gaylor, who were connected with the famous contract for the Savannah harbor contract, escaped from Canada and settled in Montreal. Carter was sentenced to five years in prison and the United States government applied for a writ of extradition for Greene and Gaylor. When writ was made out by a Montreal tradition commission the two men came down to Quebec, where they had a hot and dramatic chase and broken back to Montreal. Through writs corpus proceedings Greene and Gaylor were taken back to Quebec after a long legal controversy obtained their liberty within the last few days of the province of Quebec.

The United States government appealed the privy council of England.

Mr. McMaster occupied the rest of the day, and when the court adjourned until tomorrow.

McDonnell. By a series of shifts in attachment Comer succeeded in retaining possession of the legacy left Miss McDonnell despite an order of the probate court to deliver the money to her.

Wearied of efforts to force Comer to deliver her money to her, it is asserted, Mr. McDonnell called the executor of the will to the attention of the probate court.

thief and defaulter and declare he had never earned an honest dollar in his life. He was then taken to the court by the judge and in his own behalf caused an attorney to appear and to deny the charges against him. The attorney, who was (for Miss McDonnell) the "biggest" himself, then asked the court to dismiss the suit the legacy has been tied up for four years.

In the opinion handed down today sustaining a jury in the circuit court which was composed of two Russians and one slunder judge Judge Fireman, of the French appears the court, reviews the evidence and finds the case is not a "damnable" one.

No reason appears why Comer did not make a statement in his own defense. McDonnell and obtain his "youngee" through any reliable bank," said Judge Fireman. "The court is not going to let Comer took an active interest in procuring attachments against the money he has made."

Russian headquarters, Mukden, Dec. 16.—There was considerable desultory firing on both sides today. The Japanese made an advance, but it proved to be only a demonstration.

The fighting continued and a curious melee resulted last night from a simultaneous advance of the Russians and Japanese. Two columns of Japanese, taking advantage of the darkness, advanced on the Russian lines. The Russians, at the same time, a Russian column set out for the village of Nanganzu. The Russian column was surprised by the Japanese and some of their base and though they had been discovered, but held Nanganzu while the Russians withdrew their forces.

The Japanese re-entered the village, where they were greeted with a tremendous explosion which killed many of them. In the meantime the two Japanese columns were engaged in a fierce battle. The Russians heard the explosion and though they had been outflanked, where they met as each side was returning. The Japanese were surprised. A hand-to-hand struggle followed and the Russians were impossible to distinguish friend from foe. The Russian advance was done. Russian loss was only one.

The night of Dec. 14, fourteen Russian soldiers were killed and 100 captured. When they destroyed a Japanese signal tower and carried off an old Japanese flag. The Japanese captured the signal the approach of Russian troops.

Washington, Dec. 18.—The house subcommittee on the impeachment proceedings against Judge Swaine today decided that the views of each of its seven members should be prepared and presented at a meeting of the subcommittee tomorrow afternoon, when the impeachment will be prepared for submission to the judiciary committee.

"None of the statements showed him to be inept, but a few breaks in the story led me to see that his memory was not so good as he claimed to be," he said. "He was unable to tell a clear story. The police were notified and Detective Shattuck was called on to handle the case. The woman was unable to give a description of the man further than that he was a white male, about 30 years of age. Through the rear of the lot his foot prints could be seen in the mud and sand. He was wearing a dark overcoat and crossed the street." He could not furnish a description of the man, but he has seen nothing to work on.
